SON TUT

Finca Son Tut

Experience the most charming side of Mallorca at Son Tut: an exquisite rustic estate that combines agriculture with experimental art in a true Mediterranean landscape.

Experience the most charming side of Mallorca at Son Tut: an exquisite rustic estate that seamlessly blends the agricultural world with experimental art in the midst of Mediterranean landscapes.

The restoration of Finca Son Tut pays homage to its identity and nearly two centuries of pioneering history within the agricultural domain of Sa Pobla. This picturesque and private estate, recognized as a Historical Heritage of Sa Pobla, spans 15 hectares for leisurely strolls and enjoyment of authentic Mediterranean scenery.

From the simplicity and generosity of a porch spanning over 200 meters, revel in views of barley fields, cypress-lined paths, and oleander that encircle the estate. Explore gardens filled with aromatic plants such as rosemary, lavender, mastic, teucrium, and more, along with spectacular views of the Sierra de Tramontana. The expansive porch is an ideal space for relaxation after a day by the pool or for hosting delightful gatherings and special events.

Finca Son Tut is committed to forging connections with the landscape through contemporary avant-garde art, aiming to reconcile and harmonize agricultural tradition with a space for experimental art. The property features a remarkable collection of avant-garde art pieces and installations scattered throughout.

Additionally, there is a charming private mill on the estate, where annual forums and debates on the diverse world of experimental art will be encouraged and celebrated. These events will be accompanied by specific installations related to the respective forum. One such event will revolve around the Night of San Antoni, the patron saint of Sa Pobla, a celebration that marks the winter solstice and holds deep traditions on the island. It will be a fabulous event centered around the night of fire where “els foguerons” will take center stage.

San Antonio's celebration recalls the not-so-distant agricultural past of the island, with its night filled with characteristic elements such as demons, foguerons, or the Beneïdes, along with its music and typical gastronomy, making it one of the most beloved celebrations by the people of Mallorca.

The cultivated lands yield a significant harvest of cabbage, potatoes, barley, and more, along with a flower garden and an orchard of fruit trees featuring most Mediterranean species.

The interiors of the house, with 6 rooms and complete bathrooms, showcase a combination of a carefully restored collection of family antiques in harmony with a unique commitment to contemporary and functional design throughout the various spaces and lounges in the house.

The pool area boasts a spacious sun terrace with gardens of singular beauty as a counterpoint to the breathtaking views of the Sierra de Tramontana. Access the pool through a path of cypress and lavender starting from the house's porch. There is a small house by the pool with a cozy porch, kitchen, shower, toilet, and a barbecue. A path near the pool surrounds the entire estate, allowing walks on foot or with our bicycles to explore the extensive property and picturesque nearby areas.

Our team will ensure to anticipate every detail of your stay.
